

We travel frequently for pleasure. Sharing a plane with cell phone users would be decidedly unpleasant. Flying is already such an ordeal, but a jumbo jet full of cell phone users on a long flight has to be one of your worst nightmares. I know the cell phone industry must be distraught over losing those precious airborne hours, but please take pity on those of us who are just trying to preserve a little sanity in our lives. Thank you for your consideration.